Continuation of 2. NOTE:

The proposed amendments to claims 7, 12, and 22 would overcome the previous objections to these claims. However, the proposed amendment would make claim 23 depend upon itself, rather than on claim 21 as suggested by the examiner, and the objection to claim 22 ("second receptacle module" rather than "second receptacle") is not addressed by the proposed amendment. The proposed amendments therefore does not put the application in better form for appeal, so they are not entered.

Continuation of 5. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because:

The applicants argue, regarding the rejection of claim 23 under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, that "the feature of claim 23 is readily apparent from the drawings and the specification, for example, FIG. 13" [p.11]. This is not persuasive. The examiner fails to see the recited combination of features in Fig. 13 or anywhere in the specification; the examiner would appreciate it if the applicant would please indicate by figure, element number, and a description of the figure where exactly the "groove shape portion is formed in at least one of the main portions" of the second receptacle module is. Until then, the examiner maintains the rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

The applicants argue, regarding the rejection of claims 1, 2, 16, 17, 21, and 23 over Kurihara in view of Okajima, that the rejection is improper because "what the Examiner is attempting to do is substitute the liquid crystal display ... of Okajima for the liquid crystal panel ... of Kurihara" and (the applicant continues) the liquid crystal display of Okajima is inappropriate for this substitution [p. 13], since it lacks various features which were disclosed by Kurihara. This is not persuasive. It is silly to suggest, as the applicant does, that one of ordinary skill in the art, combining the teachings and devices of these two references, would use the mold frames and groove shape portion of Kurihara and then try to attach the liquid crystal panel of Okajima to it without the necessary matching groove shape portions.

The applicants also argue that the references fail to suggest all the elements as recited by claim 1 and 21 [p.14]. This is not persuasive; all the elements are taught and/or suggested by the combined references.
